New Year New Beginnings: The Nesting Place

House of Hope is delighted to announce the launch of the Nesting Place campaign! Set to open in early 2021, the Nesting Place will be an extension of House of Hope services to provide expecting mothers and mothers with newborns the opportunity to stabilize their families. Through specialized pre-natal and post-natal care, mothers in recovery will be empowered to provide a healthy and nurturing environment for their infants for the strongest possible start in life.

Within the next nine months, House of Hope will raise $1,000,000.00 to purchase a building and help with startup costs. We need your help to make our goal. Any financial contribution helps and there are other ways to help, too! Please follow us on Instagram and Facebook by searching for @HouseofHopeUT. From there, you can engage with and share our posts. Together, we will be able to expand treatment for women and children throughout Utah!

December's News Highlight

A Thank You to Our Donors

Even though the holidays can be a difficult time for those in recovery, the celebrations this year at House of Hope were more robust than ever! Community partners and donors made the holiday season especially wonderful this year by making the wishes of the women and children at House of Hope.

We appreciate every effort taken to make the holiday season bright for the women and children we serve!

New Faces at House of Hope: Chef Dana

House of Hope is delighted to announce the hiring of a new chef, Dana! Dana comes from a varied work background—from catering to electrical work to assisting veterans—and is passionate about her community, food, and nutrition education. So far, Dana says her favorite part of working at House of Hope is the direct contact with clients who she helps teach and enhance smarter food choices.
